THE DAILY BULLETIN.

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party,
But Established for the Benefit of All.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 13, 1892.

To-morrow the Ministry will meet the House. The members who think of voting against the Cabinet have a grave responsibility on their hands. Those of them who are in touch with our business community know how grave it is. If the present members of the Ministry have that business support which is necessary to tide the affairs of Government over the present financial difficulty, and the members of the House are satisfied that they are able to carry on the business of the country and intend to do so honestly and honorably for the equal benefit of all, they should vote to keep them in office. Members must remember that the state of unsettledness injures business of every nature, and they should not allow private or party feelings to influence them in voting in any way which will injure the community. Let us have a stable government and some work done.

HOIST WITH ITS OWN PETARD.

The Advertiser of yesterday quotes the following from Todd's Parliamentary Government in England, which it truly styles a work of unquestioned authority:

Upon the resignation or dismissal of a ministry, it is customary for the sovereign to send for the recognized leader of the Opposition, or for some other person of known weight and influence in either House of Parliament, who is capable of leading successfully the political party to which he belongs, and to authorize him to undertake the formation of a new administration.

It is a constitutional necessity that the first minister of the crown should be able to assume full personal responsibility before Parliament for the appointment of every member of the administration.

The sovereign has, indeed, an undoubted right to express his wishes in favor of the introduction or exclusion of particular persons, but by modern constitutional usage he has no authoritative voice in the selection of any one but the prime minister. It is true that, in this as in other matters, the expression of a strong personal feeling on the part of the crown may have great weight in excluding a person from office, or including him, at least for a time; but even this consideration must ultimately yield to a regard for the public interests, and the sovereign must be prepared to accept as his advisers and officers of state those who have been chosen for such functions by the premier.

We thank the Advertiser for the quotation. What more exact description of our stronger justification for the Queen's actions in the present crisis could be found than in the above quotations? What has she done but send for a "person of known weight and influence" in the House? "The first minister of the crown" is "able to assume full personal responsibility before Parliament for the appointment of every member of the Administration." "The Sovereign" is no doubt "prepared to accept as advisers and officers of state those who have been chosen for such functions by the premier." And yet the Advertiser makes these very extracts the basis of an argument that the Queen has directly opposed British precedent and practice in this matter. Go to, neighbor! learn to understand English when you read it, and you won't make such fearful breaks.

THE QUEEN AND THE CONSTITUTION.

All is fair in love and war. But it would seem according to the practice of the Advertiser that in politics all should be unfair. Editorials, summaries, and those paragraphs which for want of a more appropriate name may be called funny, all teem with statements which are not merely inaccurate, but positively unfair; unfair to the Queen of these islands, unfair to every public man not an annexationist, and most unfair to the reputation and credit of this Kingdom throughout the world. An admirable letter by Her Britannic Majesty's Vice-Consul, and which appears at the very end of the correspondence and in small type, is answered by an editorial of more than usual pretension, but of which it is true to say that an article so weak, lame and captious has not appeared even in the Advertiser in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. We rather are inclined to the opinion that the ordinary mind will agree absolutely with Mr. Walker, and cannot fail to see that the Advertiser has been guilty in its editorial of what may be termed an economy. The remarks offered on the development of the written constitution are, we believe, a feeble attempt to get out of a palpable scrape, with what success may only be determined by a perusal of the letter and its antecedent reply. There is one point, however, to which Mr. Walker has not alluded, but which is not to be lightly passed over. It is rather difficult to say precisely what the Advertiser means by men who enjoy the confidence of the majority. Without mentioning names we think we may safely believe that they are to a man of that class who desire to abandon the independence of this country and to seek annexation to the United States. Suppose, now, that at the time of the dissolution of the British Parliament, the leader of the opposition were an advocate for a transfer of the sovereign power from London to Paris. What would happen? In the first place no such traitor could be a leader even of a faction. But do we suppose for a moment that the sovereign would consult such a man in forming a Cabinet, even granting that by some chance he should temporarily be leader of the victorious party? He would be shot on his way to Windsor. Mr. Gladstone is as true an Englishman as Lord Salisbury. They take different views of minor subjects, but should there be question of a forfeiture of independence Whigs and Tories alike would cease to know their differences and would rise like one man in the defence of national independence and honor.

In Honolulu it is different. The Advertiser and its friends are more than willing to sell the fairest birthright of this or any nation for a mess of porridge. It is idle to speak of such men as possessing the confidence of the nation. They do not. It is idle to compare such boodler politicians with Gladstone, who loves his country and her freedom before all worldly things. The Advertiser's Gladstones remain in the country only so long as they are compelled by circumstances. They would leave to-morrow if opportunity served, and on their return they would pose as Gladstones. Such comparisons bring ridicule on all concerned. Let the Sovereign act slowly, it is wiser so to do. But let her not be induced by sophistical similitudes into the belief that the procedure of England may be literally followed in Hawaii. Let the Advertiser pause a moment and reflect upon the consequences of its unfair, misleading, and dangerous line of policy. Let the people of the Hawaiian Kingdom remember that the warnings which emanate so frequently and so solemnly from the Advertiser office are, when analyzed, found to be by no means matter for alarm or even uneasiness. And let them rest assured that in spite of this bird of ill omen Hawaii will maintain her independence and not barter it for gold that may never come.

Queer Journalism.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—What, think you, is the idea of journalism and patriotism as understood by the Daily Advertiser? To be sure every allowance must be made. When you have to fill six pages with matter barely sufficient for two, you must of necessity resort to all kinds of expedients. But what, in the name of common decency, can be the object of inserting a column of preposterous prevarications and lies uttered by one who is spoken of as a convict and malefactor? One would think self-respect would keep such unspeakable indignity from any journal, but it is absolutely incomprehensible how it comes to pass that the editor of the Advertiser should suppose that his readers could be amused or entertained by the clumsy and indecent utterances of a disreputable man. The editor must know that the statements contained in the account of the interview are outrageously false. It all seems to point one way. The Advertiser is bent on annexation. To further the object dear to its political heart the morning paper stops at nothing, stoops to everything, and picks up and brandishes under the public nose the scouring of every journalistic gutter.

These things invariably appear just before the steamer leaves for San Francisco. The deduction is obvious. The Advertiser is deliberately striving to destroy the credit and honor of this kingdom. It actually culls the utterances of convicts and fills its columns with their indecencies, if only by so doing the world may be induced to believe that this kingdom is in a state of national discredit and insecurity. Is this our leading daily? Do people really follow such a lead? Is this kind of thing what we may expect from our annexationist politicians? If so, let us know it beforehand. Surely the Advertiser owes its readers and the still more numerous body of its non-readers an apology.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH ASSOCIATION.

Against the Passage of the Lottery Bill.

The St. Andrew's Church Association held a special meeting last evening, when the following resolution and petition were adopted, regarding the passage of the lottery bill:

Whereas, the establishment and maintenance of lotteries we believe to be opposed to the moral and social welfare of any community, which may adopt or further any such establishments or maintenance of lotteries; and

Whereas, a bill has been brought before the Hawaiian Legislature for the introduction into the country of a lottery system; be it

Resolved, that the following respectful petition be presented to the Legislative Assembly now sitting.

Signed on behalf of the St. Andrew's Church Association by its President, Secretary and Treasurer.

HONOLULU, Sept. 13, 1892.

To the President of the Legislature:

At a special meeting of the St. Andrew's Church Association, held this day, Monday, Sept. 12, 1892, the undersigned officers, on behalf of the said association, make respectful petition to the Honorable Legislative Assembly that it will decline to pass any bill which would legalize the establishment or maintenance of lotteries in this kingdom, we believing that the existence here of a lottery system would be terribly injurious to the welfare, moral, social and economic, of the peoples of various races who constitute this Hawaiian community.

Raise Your Figure.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—

Half a million!
We straddle the blind.
A million goes.

I was astonished to read all the good things you lottery schemers are going to do for Hawaii—on paper. I love pleasant dreams even though I know they will never materialize. But do double it. It will come just as cheap to you—on paper.

You offer half a million a year. It won't do. It is enough for a one-horse policy shop, but not enough for a great God-fearing lottery.

Make it the even million. Don't be small. Have a little self-respect. Half a million for boys and a small game. Nothing less than a million when men sit down at the table.

Make it a million, and show your chips before you look at your cards.

Honolulu, Sept. 9, 1892.

J. B. to Mr. Turner.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—

Friend Turner,—It seems to me that the lottery scheme is a fair subject for ridicule. It might be a sheeted scare, if the straw did not stick out. Instead of a scare, it is only a scare-crow. And as it seems to be pleasant occupation for you to keep poking in the straw with your pen, why go ahead. Stir it up once in a while, and make us believe it is alive. You said in one of your notes that you desire to amuse. As regards the lottery scheme these men have made certain elaborate promises. It is their duty to give some evidence that they are able to fulfil these promises. When they do not give such evidence, they leave it open to conjecture that their proposition is an impudent scheme to get a franchise that it may be peddled about among the gamblers of America.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market."
